Fulcrum announces new-look senior leadership team to oversee current and future health investment opportunities

Health investor Fulcrum Infrastructure Group (FIG) has announced a new-look senior management team to oversee its existing NHS LIFT health centres, and to continue exploring new investment opportunities in UK health infrastructure.

Owned by the global infrastructure investor Meridiam, over the last 20 years Fulcrum has delivered 40 community health centres across England under the NHS LIFT programme – a public-private-partnership which is also seen as an important building block for new PPP models in health infrastructure, and the future delivery of new Neighbourhood Health Centres.

Building on Fulcrum and Meridiam's strengths and experience in delivering UK infrastructure, a number of new and existing senior people have been brought together to lead the Fulcrum Infrastructure Group team including:

A new-look senior management team

- Colin Carey has been appointed as the new CEO of Fulcrum Infrastructure Group where he will oversee Fulcrum's 40 NHS LIFT health centres;
- Colin will continue to be supported by Chief Financial Officer Affan Nasir and Head of Strategy and Projects Ian Butterworth;
- General Manager Arlind Zenel will take on an expanded role overseeing Fulcrum's LIFT health centres in London and the North West, supported by Assistant General Managers Beth Porter and Jenelle Lewis-Allagoa;
- Jonathan Woolley has been appointed as the new CEO of Kudos Services who deliver high-quality facilities management services across Fulcrum's healthcare estate.

An experienced Board of Directors

- Christophe de Carmoy, Meridiam Partner and UK & Ireland Executive Director, will continue on the Fulcrum board as the chair, offering his wide range of experience from managing Meridiam's many UK infrastructure investments;
- Sarah Beaumont-Smith will continue on various boards, alongside her broader role as UK Strategy Director where she is leading Fulcrum's work with Government and industry in discussing future PPP investment opportunities in neighbourhood health;
- Christian Stanbury joined the Fulcrum board earlier this year, bringing his huge experience as CEO of Meridiam's Welsh Education Partnership Company (WEPCo) which is delivering a range of new schools and colleges in partnership with the Welsh Government.

Fulcrum CEO Colin Carey said: "Fulcrum's existing health centres continue to serve at the frontline of NHS Primary Care across London and the North West, and there are also exciting opportunities ahead for future investment in neighbourhood health. With our new look senior management team, and hugely experienced Board, Fulcrum are well-placed to continue playing a key role in UK healthcare."
